[illegible]L DEPARTMENT,

[illegible]er 20th, 1795.

[illegible] Honorable the Preſident in [illegible] ſiders it his indiſpenſable [illegible]e following Orders of the [illegible] of Directors, and at t[illegible] [illegible]te his determination t[illegible] [illegible]oſt rigorous Execution.

[illegible] from the Honorable the [illegible]ors, dated the 9th of De[illegible]

[illegible]AR. 103. "We cannot conclude [illegible] without adverting in the [illegible] [illegible]e prohibitions which ha[illegible] iſſued under the authority of [illegible] of Directors, againſt any of [illegible] [illegible]ſe under our protection, [illegible] Tranſactions with any [illegible] [illegible]s, without the knowledge, and [illegible] conſent of our reſpective Governments [illegible]d—we are happy to find that the Nabo[illegible] [illegible]nſible of the great Embarraſſments both to [illegible]is own, and the Company's Affairs, which [illegible]he Enormous Amount of their private Claims [illegible]ave occaſioned, is willing to engage not to [illegible]ncur any new Debts with Individuals—and [illegible]lthough the Legiſlature has humanely inter[illegible]ted in behalf of ſuch Individuals, as might [illegible]erwiſe have been reduced to great diſtreſs, [illegible] tranſactions we hereby in the moſt poin[illegible]te Terms, repeat our prohibitions [illegible] ſubject, and direct that no perſon [illegible] Servant of the Company, or living un[illegible] our protection, ſhall on any pretence what[illegible]er he concerned in any Loan or other Money Tranſaction with any of the Native Powers, [illegible]nleſs with the knowledge—and expreſs per[illegible]miſſion of our reſpective Governments; and if any of our Servants, or others, living under our protection, ſhall be diſcovered in any reſpect counteracting theſe Orders, we ſtrictly enjoin you to take the firſt opportunity of ſending them home to England, to be puniſhed as guilty of diſobedience of Orders, and no protection or aſſiſtance of the Company ſhall be given for the recovery of any Loans connected with ſuch Tranſactions. Your particular attention to this ſubject is ſtrictly enjoined, and any connivance on your parts to a breach of our Orders upon it, will incur our higheſt diſpleaſure."

PAR. 101. "In order to put an end to thoſe Intrigues which have been too ſucceſsfully carried on, at the Nabob's Durbar, we repeat our prohibition in the ſtrongeſt Terms, reſpecting any intercourſe between Britiſh Subjects, and the Nabob and his Family, as we are concerned that ſuch an intercourſe has been carried on greatly to the detriment and Expence of the Nabob, and merely to the advantage of Individuals. We therefore direct that all perſons who ſhall offend againſt the letter or ſpirit of this [illegible]tary Order, whether in the Company's ſervic[illegible] [illegible] under their Protection, be forthwith ſent to England."

In addition to the above, and with a view to the more effectual prevention of the pernicious practice of lending Money, upon Mortgages of the Revenue, The Preſident in Council is pleaſed to re-publiſh the following Article in the Treaty concluded with the Nabob.

ART. 8th. In conſequence of this Meaſure, whereby the Diſtricts mentioned in the Schedule No. 2 become reſponſible for any Arrears that may accrue in the Stipulated Kiſts, The ſaid Nabob agrees that he will not grant Tuncaws or Aſſignments on any account on the Revenues of the Diſtricts of the Carnatic eventually Mortgaged to the Company, and that if contrary to this Condition, any Tuncaws or Aſſignments ſhould exiſt when the ſaid Diſtricts, or any of them, ſhall be aſſumed by the ſaid Company, ſuch Tuncaws or Aſſignments ſhall be declared by the Contracting Parties to be of no value, nor ſhall they remain in effect.

The Diſtricts ſo Mortgaged, as above mentioned, are thoſe of—

TENNIVELLY,
TRICHINOPOLY,
MADURA,
ONGOLE,
VELLORE,
PALNAUD, and Northern Diſtricts of the ARCOT PROVINCE."

By Order of the Right Honorable the Preſident in Council,

TO THE EDITOR OF THE COURIER,

SIR,

By inſerting the following Letters in the Courier, you will oblige the Gentlemen of the 3d Regiment of Native Cavalry, whoſe names are ſubſcribed to the firſt.

To MAJOR JAMES STEVENSON,

Commanding the 3d Regiment of Native Cavalry,

SIR,

THE eve of your departure is to us an hour of the greateſt regret, although in ſome degree mitigated by your retiring to your native country, to enjoy the reward of a life honorably ſpent in the ſervice of our employers; ſtill memory will intrude, and ſay, you once commanded Tachinore.

The breach in our ſociety, and the loſs of the indulgencies and attentions we have received from you may make our regret appear intereſted, and it no doubt is in ſome degree ſo, but our warmeſt acknowledgements are your due, and we truſt they will be received as a juſt and grateful tribute to your virtues; not the effuſion of flattery.

We hope, and truſt, your gallantries during the late Wars, and every where we have had the honor of ſerving under you, are faithfully recorded, they never will be obliterated from the memory of the 3d Regiment of Native Cavalry, and whenever Sattimungalum, the 6th of March, and Seringapatam are remembered, you will be preſent to our recollection.

That every felicity this World affords may attend you, is, Sir, the ſincereſt wiſh of

Your faithful and obliged Servants,

(Signed) A. SENTLEGER, Lieut. & Agent.
C. RUMLEY, Lieut. & Qr. Maſter.
J. GEEKIE, Lieut. & Adjutant,
A. STRACHAN, Lieutenant,
H. MASON, Cornet,
G. FISCHER, Cornet,
J. JOHNSTON, Aſſiſtant Surgeon.

TACHINORE, 15th September, 1795.

To the Hon. Lieut. A. SENTLEGER; Lieutenants RUMLEY, GEEKIE, and STRACHAN; Cornets MASON and FISCHER; and Mr. JOHNSTON, Aſſiſtant Surgeon.

GENTLEMEN,

I AM favored with your letter, and it makes me very happy to find my conſtant wiſh and endeavour to give ſatisfaction to the Officers under my command, rewarded by ſuch pleaſing marks of approbation.

Our united efforts in the Field for the Service of our Country and Employers, affords very pleaſing reflection; and the leſs fatiguing Duties of Cantonment have afforded leiſure for the enjoyment of Society, that has made a laſting impreſſion on my mind.

It will always afford me great pleaſure to hear of the ſucceſs of the 3d Regiment of Native Cavalry, and I remain with ſincere regard and eſteem,

GENTLEMEN,

Your affectionate Friend,

And moſt obedient Servant,

(Signed) J. STEVENSON.

THE MARY PACKET, Captain Stevenſon, ſailed for England, on Sunday Evening, the 25th Inſtant.

CAPTAIN STUART of his Majeſty's 72d Regiment, proceeds to England on the Mary Packet, charged with Deſpatches, announcing the Surrender of the Garriſons of Orſtenberg, and Trincomallie, and the other Dutch Settlements on the Iſland of Ceylon, to the Britiſh Troops under the Command of MAJOR GENERAL STUART.

LIEUTENANT KILNER, late firſt Lieutenant of the Flag Ship, the Suffolk, alſo proceeds to England on the Mary, in charge of Deſpatches from COMMODORE RAINIER, to the Lords Commiſſiones of the Admiralty.

THE WEATHER.—Although the fall of Rain, in the vicinity of Madras, has not yet been ſo ample, as might have been expected at this Seaſon; yet, from all the accounts received, both from the Weſtward, and Southward, we are happy to learn that the gentle, but continual Rain, which has fallen during the whole of this Month, has nearly filled the largeſt Tanks, and that from the general, and pleaſing appearance of the Country, the Crops of Grain, promiſe to fulfill the moſt ſanguine expectations of the Huſbandman.

By accounts from the Northward, we learn that a ſeries of tempeſtous Weather had prevailed on the Coaſt, from CORINGA to GANJAM; Letters of the 16th Inſtant mention, that "ſeveral Veſſels had, been ſunk, or driven "on ſhore, from the violence of the Weather" —Letters from Coringa, of the 19th Inſtant, aſſure us of the ſafety of that place,—they ſtate the weather as having been unuſually violent.

The SWALLOW PACKET, is mentioned, as having experienced the utmoſt violence of the Gale, whilſt at Anchor off Vizagapatam;—whence ſhe was drove to Sea, but without having ſuſtained any apparent damage.—we are truly ſorry to learn that CAPTAIN CLIFTON had Died, on board the Swallow, on the day ſhe left the Roads of Vizagapatam.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER,

Dated Ganjam, 15th October, 1795.

GANJAM 13th Inſtant—About one o'Clock this morning, the River ſuddenly roſe to an amazing height, and the water burſt over its banks with amazing violence, ſweeping away every think that oppoſed it, it very ſoon compleatly overflowed the whole of the Pettah of Ganjam: the noiſe of the water burſting in, and the darkneſs of the night made it a ſcene truly terrifying. On the approach of day, the proſpect I aſſure you was moſt alarming, as far as the eye could reach, the whole of the level Country was under water, and numbers of the houſes in the Pettah ſeemed to have fallen down, and the tops of thoſe that were yet ſtanding, were covered with People: the water roſe in many places upwards of ſix feet, and the roads to and from the Pettah, were impaſſable the whole of the forenoon, but the water beginning to ſubſide, the roads became paſſable towards evening.

14th—The water in the Village is nearly all gone off, and the River is ſubſided much, almoſt every-ſtraw houſe in the Pettah is fallen down, as likewiſe numbers of the brick houſes, indeed it is ſurprizing the deſtruction that has been committed in ſo ſhort a ſpace of time. The Gentlemens Houſes here, though moſt of them were ſurrounded with water have however ſuffered but little, Enſign Pippets houſe however excepted, being unfortunately compleatly thrown down by the force of the water, numbers of cattle have been ſwept away. From the Bramins, having previouſly predicted the overflow of the river, numbers of the inhabitants left the Pettah the night before, and had taken refuge in the Hills, and thoſe that remained had ſecured themſelves in places of ſafety, ſo that as far as I have been able to learn, only a very few lives have been loſt, but the property of individuals damaged or loſt muſt be immenſe, ſeveral veſſels have been ſtranded in the river, and a new veſſel has been carried out to ſea. Indeed Ganjam is in a moſt complete ſtate of diſtreſs; at preſent the inhabitants are ſtill very much alarmed, and numbers are leaving the place hourly, from an idea having ariſen that the Sea is to come in this evening, and deſtroy the whole place, many of our ſervants have run off, and as nothing is to be precured in the Bazars, we are not a little diſtreſſed, being totally unprepared, for ſuch an accident.

The cauſe of the overflow of the river muſt be much owing to the conſtant heavy Rains, we have had here ſince the 20th of laſt month, but it is reported that the river overflowed here though not ſo high, in the time of Mr. Cotsford owing to a branch of the Catack River, which is only ſeperated from the Goomſah River by a mound of earth, which gave way, and the water pouring in from the Catack River overflowed the low Country, and it is ſuppoſed that the ſame accident has again happened, and has been the cauſe of the preſent inundation.

15th.—The River is very much fallen, and the water is moſtly run off from the places that were overflowed, though the inhabitants were deceived in the overflowing of the ſea, that they imagined would happen laſt night, they are ſo much alarmed by what they have ſuffered, that few of thoſe that went off have yet returned. The Rains here ſtill continue very heavy.

Letters from CHICACOLE, mention that the River near that place had riſen to an unuſual height, in conſequence of which, many Houſes were injured and ſome totally deſtroyed, and that other damages have reſulted from the alarming influx of water from the Hills—we do not learn that any lives have been loſt.

On Thurſday the 29th Inſtant, will be performed the Tragedy of DOUGLAS, with the pleaſing, and admired after-piece of the POOR SOLDIER.

SIR CHARLES WARE MALET, gave a ſuperb, and well conducted Ball and Supper, to the Ladies and Gentlemen of Bombay on the 2d Inſtant.

Major Macdonald, one of the Aides de Camp of His Highneſs the Nabob of the Carnatic, has arrived at Calcutta on board the Suffolk's Tender.

BOMBAY COURIER—October 3d.

On Wedneſday Evening laſt, a Dingey arrived in the Harbour from Muſcat, from whence it brought diſpatches for Government that had been directed thither by the Honorable Company's Reſident at Graine, dated the 18th of Auguſt. Theſe advices gave cover to a few Continental Gazettes [illegible] to the 10th of June, but we believe have added nothing to our information from Great Britain; of the intelligence from Europe arrived by this opportunity, there are ſeveral articles of the firſt importance, but none of greater magnitude than the convulſions at Toulon, that are upon the point of once more diſmembering this Town, and it's Fleet from the Republic, and the Inſurrection recently agitated at Paris, that has menaced the total ſubverſion of the preſent Government of France.

In the above Paper, ſeveral articles of European Intelligence appear, and of a nature truly extraordinary—two of which vere inſerted in our laſt Paper—namely, the Jacobin Conſpiracy at TOULON, and the diſarming of the French Navy—the latter circumſtance would appear to us highly improbable, even had a Peace between Great Britain and the French Republic been concluded—that ſuch an event had not taken place, in the Month of May; is aſcertained beyond all doubt.

The details of Treaſon at Toulon and Paris, being evidently dictated by that ſpirit of Anarchy which gave them birth, only ſerve to ſhew the extent of that ſyſtem of deſtruction and terror, over which the MODERATE PARTY had completely triumphed on the 2[illegible]th of May. The Conſpiracy at Toulon, could not however, have worn, at any period, a very formidable appearance, as the accounts publiſhed in the Bombay Courier, and which the Editor obſerves he had taken from Continental Gazettes, declare the Inſurgents to have been without a Leader—and that the Garriſon remained faithful to the CONVENTION: it is alſo added, that the Fleet, for whoſe ſafety ſome fears had been entertained—had proceeded to the outer Road, and as a few days muſt have informed the Toulonese of the Exile of Barrere, and the reſtoration of tranquillity in the Capital, we can [illegible] look on the attempt as one of the laſt efforts of a diſpairing and deteſted Faction—happ[illegible] ſucceeded by juſt [illegible] moderate men; who h[illegible] declared [illegible] ready to treat for PEACE [illegible] every [illegible] oppoſed to them whatever [illegible] form [illegible] ment or mode [illegible] Adminiſte[illegible] g i[illegible] [illegible] may adhere [illegible]

SCORPION CRUISER.

As the particulars of the Capture of the Honorable Company's Cruiſer Scorpion, Captain William Selby, have never been fully ſtated, we take the liberty of laying before our readers, the following detail as extracted from Captain Selby's letter.

The Honorable Company's Cruiſer Scorpion was captured on Sunday 12th January 1794.

At half paſt 4 A. M. being in Latitude 27. 20. North, and Longitude, 36' 20" Weſt, by account, the Wind was at E. N. E. and were keeping the Ship clean full, going N. by W. when the Officer of the watch informed me he ſaw a Sail on the Lee beam; we immediately hauled cloſe upon a Wind and were of opinion the Stranger was ſteering Weſt, ten Minutes, before we diſcovered five other Sail to Windward of us, they were ſo ſpread we had no chance whatever to Eſcape, but to keep on our courſe in the hope they had not diſcovered us, but were ſoon undeceived by finding they all hauled up to the Northward after us; having no doubt but they were Ships of War, and being very near, we expected they would have fired at us to bring us too, but finding they did not we kept our Luff cloſe, and weathered the Ship neareſt to us, and on our Weather bow, it came on to blow freſh and we carried a heavy preſs of Sail, but we ſoon diſcovered that two of the Ships were in chaſe of us and gaining faſt upon us, we then endeavoured to give ourſelves a chance of eſcaping by keeping the Ship large, and making ſail, a little before day light one of the Veſſels (a Brig) came up under our ſtern and hailed us; but did not ſeem diſpoſed to come along ſide till the other Veſſel came up, which at day light we diſcovered to be a frigate, and the reſt of the ſquadron were now coming up with us very faſt: which we diſcovered to be two line of Battle Ships: ſoon after day break the Brig aſtern hoiſted French Colours, to which we ſhewed none; I conſulted with Captains Oakes and Braithwaite, who were clearly of opinion with me that we could not eſcape. The Brig ſeeing the frigate to Windward and cloſe enough to engage, came cloſe under our quarter and began to fire, I now hoiſted our colours: ſhe ſtruck our Mizen Maſt and ſome of our ſails, upon this, in conſequence of the orders I received from Sir Charles Oakley, I determined to throw over board all the Company's deſpatches, as did Captains Oakes and Braithwaite thoſe to the Honorable Court of Directors and the Government with which they were charged. The Frigate being by this time far advanced and the brig cloſe under our ſtern, I was compelled to ſtrike the Honorable Company's Colours: at 7 A. M. a Boat from the brig came along ſide with an off[illegible] and too[illegible] poſſeſſion of the Ship. We fou[illegible] conſiſted of two line of Battle Ships—Two la[illegible] frigates, and two Sloops of War, commanded by Admiral Vanſtable—About ten minutes after the Scorpion ſtruck, the Admiral's ſhip, with the reſt of the ſquadron came up, the Admiral ſent a [illegible] with an Officer to carry me on bo[illegible], requeſti[illegible] to carry with me, my Commiſſi[illegible] and muſter book—At this period [illegible] of the ſquadron were flocking [illegible] pion, and immediately bega[illegible] plunder every thing that came [illegible] being for ſometime on board th[illegible] obtained permiſſion to return on [illegible] for my baggage, which I found [illegible] the greateſt part of my cloaths [illegible]

Two or three days previous to our being permitted to land, the French Conſul came down to go through the form of Condemning the Scorpion—The Admiral inſiſted on my ſigning a paper purporting that all private property had been given up to the reſpective proprietors, which under my circumſtances I conſented to do, notwithſtanding the Admiral had convincing proofs to the co[illegible]

CHRONICLE—6th, OCT.

Garrison ... Governor General,
October 3d, 1795.

The Governor General has seen with great surprise an Advertisement in the Gazette of Thursday last, by the authority of the "Presidency Committee of Officers," inviting the Officers at the Presidency to meet, as subsequently explained, for the purpose of signing an Address to Mr. Hastings. The Governor General would have had no objection to comply with the wishes of the Officers, to meet for the avowed object expressed in the Advertisement, had they been communicated to him through the regular channel; but he thinks it necessary to declare his decided disapprobation of the illegal authority by which the Officers were invited to assemble, and in consequence directs, that no Meeting of the Officers attached to the Presidency, be held on the 5th Instant, nor on any further occasion, without his previous sanction.

By letters received lately from Pegue, dated the 5th ultimo, we learn that Captain Symes, the Embassador, had some time before arrived at the Court of Ava, that he was received, and treated whilst there, with every mark of distinction and respect, and it was expected, he would be enabled to return to Rangoon, (the object ...s embassy being first satisfactorily adj... ...fore the 1st of the present month.

THE FIRST SPEECH OF HIS EXCELLENCY THE VICEROY OF CORSICA, DELIVERED TO THE CHAMBER OF PARLIAMENT.

"GENTLEMEN,

"It is with unfeigned pleasure that I meet you this day in Parliament, both because your Constitution, on which the future happiness of Corsica depends, is hereby consumated; and because the full energy of your wisdom and authority is required at a period rendered doubly interesting by the establishment of a new Government, and by the continuance of the war.

"You are charged not only with important, but arduous duties, since you must on the one hand secure your freedom as an independent nation, by a vigorous and courageous exertion in the war, and on the other, you must make provision for internal happiness and liberty, by deliberations which are better suited to ...mes of tranquillity and peace.

"For the discharge of this great trust ... rely with perfect confidence on the wisdom a... public spirit of Parliament, supported by t... zealous and hearty union of all good Corsicans, whether in public or private stations; for you will, no doubt, participate with me in the pleasing reflection, that the present period affords the happy opportunity of composing past animosities, and obliterating divisions no longer supported by any subsisting motive, and which being always at variance with the general good, are peculiarly prejudicial to it in moments like the present.

"His Majesty on his part, ever just and ever firm to his engagements, has already taken those steps which the Constitution pointed out, for completing the new system of your Government. He has been pleased to ratify in person, the Consti...al Act which he had previously authoriz... to accept in his name.

"I have ordered the gracious answer made by his Majesty to the Address of the late General Council presented to him by deputies from that Assembly, to be laid before you. I have also ordered to be laid before you, a copy of the Commission by which his Majesty has been pleased to confer on me the exalted honor of representing him in this kingdom under the title of Viceroy, agreeable to the provisons of the Constitutional Act. By the choice of a person whose best qualification for that distinguished station, is a warm and steady affection for Corsica, you will perceive that the same sentiment prevailed on that occasion in his Majesty's mind.

"I am enabled with equal satisfaction to acquaint you, that his Majesty is not less attentive to your protection against the hostile designs of the enemy; and you may depend on his powerful and vigorous support during the war. He confides at the same time in the zeal and courage of his Corsican subjects, for repelling the enemy, and defending in the independence of their country, and the security of their lives, fortunes, and honor, all that can be dear to men. In these views, a considerable body of Corsican Infantry has been raised, and an immediate augmentation to that National corps is intended.

"Measures have been taken for enabling his Majesty to assemble the militia, and employ them against the common enemy in case of need. It will be for the Parliament in its wisdom, to frame adequate regulations for the perfection of such a system as may give to Corsica, in moments of danger, the full benefit of the courage and patriotism of all her subjects; for it must not be forgotten, that the independence and liberty of your country must not depend on the protection of regular troops alone, however formidable the force employed may be; but, under the providence of God must ... principal... the hearts and arms o... ...ple who love ... country and th... ...dom.

"A settlement of your Religious Establishment has been reserved for the Chamber of Parliament, in concert with his Holiness the Pope.

"To this important point you will naturally direct your early and serious attention; and I have no doubt, that the wisdom and piety which will preside in your councils, will lead you to the means of reconciling the civil interests and temporal prosperity of your Constituents, with the holy duties of Religion, the reverence due to its Ministers, and the sacred rights of property.

"The definition and limits of the several powers and jurisdictions to be exercised by the different Tribunals, in the administration of justice, as well as a declaration of the Law itself, are other points of serious and urgent importance. A faithful and judicious administration of the National Property, particularly of the woods and forests, the improvement of agriculture, manufactures, and commerce, the encouragement of ind...ry in all its branches, the government and di...pline of the military, the encouragement of navig......, and regulations which may bring forth the naval resources of the island, whether in mariners or stores, in its own defence, and in the general service of the Empire; the repair of highways; and improvement of internal communication; institutions for public instruction, establishments of health, both for the security of the inhabitants, and the convenience of their commerce, all these are objects worthy of your early deliberations, and for which your wisdom and diligence will not fail to provide.

"I have the greatest satisfaction in announcing to you the conclusion of a Treaty for the Marriage of his Royal Highness the Prince of Wales with the Princess Caroline, daughter of the Duke of Brunswick. I am persuaded that your affection for the Person and Family of his Majesty will make you participate in the general joy diffused through every part of his dominions, by an event so interesting to the happiness of his Majesty and that illustrious Prince.

"Gentlemen,

"Impressed with the momentous nature of the present period, and of the duties which it imposes on us, I am nevertheless confident in your patriotism, talents, and application, and I pray God, so to bless and enlighten our councils, and so to endue us with wisdom and virtue, as to render this first Parliament of Corsica an example to all succeeding one. as well as to your constituents of the n... ... of disinterested, zealous, ...all, united exertion for the public ...od.

"It is by the ... and by the blessing of God, that I trust ... Country will triumph over its foreign and domestic enemies, and attain, under the mild and equitable Government of his Majesty, the summit of National Prosperity and Happiness."

PUCLIC OFFICE BOW STREET.

The singular case of Mr. Courtoy, and Mrs. Phipoe, having excited much curiosity, we have, obtained the whole particulars of this extraordinary transaction which came out on the re-examination.

Maria Teresa Phipoe, and Mary Brown, her servant, underwent a second examination before J. Flood, Esq. respecting the charge of violently assaulting and extorting from John Courtoy, a promissory note for 2000l.

Mr. C. repeated his account of the transaction with several additions and as the circumstances related by him, differed in some respects from his former evidence, which, we suppose, arose from his not being able to recollect every particular, we shall now lay his account of the whole transaction before our readers.

Mr. C. said, that owing to an in... with the parents of a Miss Dechan...pe, now in France, he became acquainted with the prisoner, Mrs. Phipoe, in whom Miss D. placed great confidence; that Miss D. by the death of her father, came into possession of near 7000l. and which being invested in the English funds, a power of attorney was granted to him by Miss D. for the purpose of receiving the dividends of said stock while she was in France; that a short time since, Mrs. Phipoe sent to inform him that she had received a letter from Miss D. in France, desiring that another power of attorney might be made and sent to her to sign, in which she, Mrs. Phipoe, was appointed to receive the dividends of the monies belonging to Miss D. which was accordingly done, and that he understood she had received the amount of said dividends ever since; that, within these few days, he had received several letters from Mrs. Phipoe, requesting him to call on her and take charge of some money that Miss Deschampe had desired to have distributed among some French emigrants in this town; but that the witness not wishing to interfere in the business, wrote her a note to that effect, which, so far from satisfying, produced two threatning letters to compel him to come.

Here the letters were read, which contained the most abandoned and disgraceful expressions, respecting a connection which she seemed to insinuate existed between the prosecutor and his house-keeper. That after pressing his attendance in this manner, she refused to see him when he went to her last Friday week; but afterwards sent him another letter, stating, it was illness that rendered her unable to see him; but desired, if he valued his own happiness, to come the Tuesday following.

He accordingly called on that day, at her house in Hans square, Brompton, when he was conducted into the parlour by Mary Brown, who informed him her mistress was up stairs dressing; ver... after she came down and requsted him to ... up stairs, which, on his hesitating to do, she said, "sure you are not afraid!" They then went up stairs, followed by Mary Brown, who, when her mistress laid hold of him by the throat and threw him down in an arm chair attempted to draw a black crape cap over his head and face; but which he prevented her doing by tearing it to pieces.

Mrs. Phipoe then held a large Knife to his throat and cried out, "you villain, now is the time to murder you." They then tied him down in the chair with some cord, and repeated the horrid threat, adding, "it has been determined that you should be murdered, cut to pieces, and buried in the garden." She then knocked on the floor with her foot and a young man, who, he understood was a doctor (having seen him before with her) came up stairs, and on her telling him she was going to murder the witness, he replied "do as you like" and went down stairs again.

She then asked him "if he had made his will, and if he had said his prayers?" to both of which questions he answered in the negative, and requested a few minutes for the latter purpose; she then in the utmost fury, and with the most terrifying action, declared she would open his heart, holding the knife all the time close to him. He begged to know what it was she wanted; and being informed it was money, he offered her 300l. then 500l. and afterwards 1000l. all of which sums she refused, and immidiately made an attempt to cut his throat, which putting up his hand to defend, he received a severe cut in his fingers; it was at last agreed that he should give her 2000l. which she said she must have by two promissory notes of 1000l. each, and ordered Mary Brown to fetch stamps for the purpose, which she did, and also a draft for him to draw the notes by, and which he supposed had been written by the person called the doctor.

That in drawing the first note he made a mistake, which induced him to tear it, and not being able to procure another stamp, she ordered him to draw one for 2000l. and date on the 30th of March, in writing in this he made a mistake, in spelling the word two, when she again threatened his life, and he requsted it might be sent down stairs for the doctor to write the word for him to copy from, which was done, and having finished it he delivered it into her possession; at this time there was a pair of loaded pistols on the table, each she said contained two balls, a large knife wrapped round with black crape, and a glass of white arsenic, of which she bid him take his choice, as he must die; or if he did not like any of these, he should be cut in pices, and busied in the garden as at first intended.

That the Doctor came up a third time, when she gave the note to him, and he said, "I cannot possibly join in such a horrible massacre; and as this man has given the note to our satisfaction, give him his life."

That on this she cried extremely, and appeared ready to go into fits with passion, which induced the Doctor to take the knife out of her hand, which she had not parted with before the whole time. The witness then took the opportunity of running down stairs, and was pursued by Mrs. Phipoe and her maid.

Mrs. Phipoe then said, that though he might escape being murdered there, she had got some villains to way-lay him on the road; he at last got out of the house without futher injury, and made the best of his way home, where he related the story to his house-keeper, and the next morning communicated it to a friend in Pall-Mall, who advised him to come to Bow-street.

John Miller, one of the officers swore, that he, in Company with Carpmeal and Taylor, apprehended Mrs. Phipoe, at her house in Hans-square, on Wednesday last, and on searching her, found a pocket-book, which he produced, and which contained a note for 2,000l.

This was identified by Mr. Courtoy, as being the same obtained from him by the means above described.

Miller also produced a carving knife he found in one of the closets, and which appeared to be stained with blood.

Taylor produced a cotton gown, and a blue sash, the last of which wa... ...and the former had every ...pearance of having bee... washed, as it was ...nging up to dry when Taylo... ... and sash Mr. Courtoy declared to be the same Mrs. Phipoe had on when she assaulted him on Tuesday evening; the piece of a chair cover was found by the same officers, which matched that on which Mr. Courty was tied down, and was also bloody.

The evidence here closed, when the magistrate asked the prisoners, if they had any thing to say in their defence? They declined then saying any thing, having employed a counsel, and were taken from the bar. They were ordered to be brought up for another examination.

Mr. Courtoy's very relation, of this affair afforded some entertainment. He displayed the manner and action of Mrs. Phipoe in so ludicrous a manner, as to excite the laughter of all present.

Fisher, the man who was apprehended at Mrs Phipoe's house, was not examined on Saturday, though he remains in custody.

By the London Papers we learn th... Mr. PHIPOE, has been since tried for the above offence, and CAPITALY CONVICTED.
